The technology has been optimized to create an industry-leading physics engine that impacts player behaviour, ball physics, player collision physics, player movement and attack. FIFA 22 introduces “HyperMotion Technology,” which uses motion capture data collected from 22 real-life players playing a complete, high-intensity football match in motion capture suits. The data collected from player movements, tackles, aerial duels and on-ball actions is used to power gameplay. We're excited to show you this new feature in motion today at E3. Hybrid Broadcast Some news stations will be broadcasting the E3 conference live, and we will soon announce which ones they are. We always love to see the live reaction from E3 attendees, and hearing from our fans is a huge part of the E3 experience. This year, fans will be able to watch E3 Livestreams as well, from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. PT on the EA PLAY site. E3 2016 is just around the corner. If you are looking for more news, previews and videos, we'll be back in full swing in the next couple of weeks as we countdown to the action-packed show. Epiphyseal lesion development in the knee following cruciate ligament rupture. The pathophysiology of osteoarthritis following cruciate ligament rupture was examined in 26 growing dogs. Stabilization of anterior cruciate ligament rupture led to cartilage degeneration in the medial tibial plateau and cartilage loss from the medial and lateral femoral condyles by 5 months. Variable arthritic changes were noted in the patellofemoral joint. These changes were most severe at 5 months, coincident with the growth plate closure. At 16 months there was a reduction in both the medial and lateral femoral condylar cartilage loss from that at 5 months. Patellar subluxation/dislocation was not associated with cartilage loss. At 5 months the medial tibial plateau cartilage loss was less in the two dogs which had the posterior cruciate ligament ruptured than in those with anterior cruciate ligament rupture. However, at 16 months the medial tibial plateau loss was greater in the former group. Eight dogs had a complete anterior cruciate ligament rupture, and cruciate ligament reconstruction in the other 18 dogs was successful. Dogs with anterior
