This game is inspired by one of "Shogi", Japan's national board game. In this game, you can play on a board of 10x10 with a 6x6 field. The opponent uses the crystals and stones on the board to build their castle, while you use your own pieces to attack his castle. You can build stones and crystals which defend your castle, or attack the opponent's castle. Although the game has just been revealed, it has already been in development since March 2014, and is currently being released in Summer 2016. Features: 10 Original Castles 10 Original Units 168 Original Characters - In addition to 9 Bodhisattvas, and 8 Buddhas of the Present - In addition to 48 Guardian Spirits - In addition to the original units - In addition to original Characters About This Game The Bodhisattvas in the Lotus Garden The Bodhisattvas are an ancient Buddhist belief in which those who are spiritual, wise, and compassionate protect the world. Tosaki Kujo, assistant manager at Lotus Garden, has been able to make a full-fledged game of "Shogi", a national game in Japan that is based on "Go", a more ancient board game known to have been played since ancient times. We call "Shogi" a game of stone, and the stones on the board are controlled by the Bodhisattvas, a group of 12 Bodhisattvas. In the game, you have to expand your "castle", and defend your castle, all the while building up the stones on the board. With the casting of a spell by the hands of the Bodhisattvas, you can build stones to attack the opponent's "castle". In the game, the Bodhisattvas are required to get the "Guardian Spirits" to attack your opponent's castle. The Bodhisattvas, and your opponent, fight to the finish line, finishing by killing all the enemy "Guardian Spirits" on the board. The pieces of both the Bodhisattvas, and your opponent, will become stronger as the game goes on. The enemy uses stones, and the Bodhisattvas use spells. If the Bodhisattvas face off against the Guardian Spirits, the winner is decided by the strength of the attack. Please be sure to enjoy this game where stone meets spirit. : The Ultimate Rock and Roll Fantasy Rhythm Night: The Ultimate Rock and Roll Fantasy is an arcade fighting game released by Gamate in 2004 (2004 in Japan). It was developed by JAST and ported by Code Mystique. The game features a mixture of real-life and fantasy characters that the player can summon to fight and battle against each other in an arena setting. During the game's arcade run, the characters from the film From Dusk Till Dawn were chosen, featuring George Clooney, Robert Patrick and Quentin Tarantino among the cast. The game was one of the first to feature a synthesis of the Street Fighter and Mortal Kombat fighting game genres. Rhythm Night was noted for its deep character customization which has remained a hallmark of the series since then. The arcade version was a runner-up in the 2004 Genesis Award Game of the Year. The arcade game made its home console debut on the PS2 and Xbox in 2005, a sequel in 2006 for the GameCube and Wii. Gameplay Rhythm Night is a high-scoring beat 'em up. The player defeats opponents by hitting their hitboxes (small colored circles around them) with their own Hitbox Gauges, which later goes into a red state for one second when hit with a successful hit from a super move. Most characters have two Hitbox Gauges, one more powerful version of their normal gauge is chosen by pressing a button instead of simply tapping on the gauge. After a few successful hits of hitting the hitboxes, the next character is chosen. The game uses two types of match-ups: Tag-Team and Head-to-Head (Head/Head). Head-to-Head matches have a variable number of opponents in the match, ranging from 1 to 4. These battles are played in the style of Mortal Kombat however the combos will receive a 0 point penalty if more than one person makes a move at the same time. Most characters have special moves that are unique to those characters - most notably the Geese from Morrigan (Dracula origin) and the Reaper from the movie From Dusk Till Dawn. The game also has a limited number of playable characters, namely The Dimebag, The Deen, The Breton, The Marv, The Morrigan, The Morrigan (Dracula origin), The Mojo, The Mojo Jr., The Grove Keeper, Morcheeba, Morcheeba Jr., and Ronny Daggett (Dracula origins).
